Generating and Saving Aligned Synthetic Word Images from Text Files Using a Trained Generator

This script enables word-level image generation using a trained Conditional GAN generator, with proper typographic alignment and batch processing from .txt files

Key Components:

- Character Grouping:
Categorizes characters into ascenders, descenders, x-height letters, and punctuation to ensure accurate vertical alignment.
- trim_whitespace():
Removes blank margins from generated characters to eliminate unnecessary padding.
- resize_and_baseline_align():
Resizes and vertically aligns each character based on its typographic role:
 - Punctuation like commas sits lower,
 - Ascenders reach the top,
 - Descenders dip below the baseline.
- generate_and_save_word_image():
 - Converts a word into valid character labels.
 - Generates images for each character.
 - Applies smoothing, alignment, and spacing.
 - Concatenates characters into a word image.
 - Saves the final image as a PNG in the specified output folder.
- generate_from_all_txt():
 - Iterates through all .txt files in a given folder.
 - Reads word lists from each file.
 - Generates and saves word images using the generator model.
 - Organizes outputs into subfolders named after each input file.

Batch-Correcting OCR Word Image Filenames via Transcript Matching with Levenshtein Distance

This script automatically renames and organizes OCR-extracted word images by matching their filenames to words in their corresponding transcript files using fuzzy matching based on Levenshtein distance.

Evaluating GAN-Generated Word Images Against OCR Ground Truth Using MSE and SSIM
